Six Months Ago

Some people said the prices of city lots were so high that there was no speculation in buying. We now know that had a person gone to any one of the real estate offices in the city with $10,000 and thrown it on the counter, saying, "Give me anything you have in the west end up to that amount," he would have made a splendid investment. Too cautious people are trembling on the brink today, fearing to make the plunge, like their fellows of six months ago, and in another six months they will be looking at some other fellow carrying off the profits while they will feel like kicking themselves. Prices are firm now and are bound to increase. What you can buy today you may not be able to buy tomorrow. The Great West Land Company have a large list of Main street lots, lots on First and Second streets, lots everywhere in the city. A few lots at from $75 to $150. Invest today.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2ND, 1903.

FROM OTTAWA

September 24th, 1903.

The opposition are still busy holding up the Grand Trunk Pacific bill in committee of the whole. It is intended that the bill should be postponed as long as possible the passage of the bill and thereby throw active operations on the railway over for another year. It could not have been made more apparent than by the attitude of the opposition during this debate. The bill received its first reading on the last day of July. Its principal features had been before the public for nearly a month before. It has now been under consideration for nearly two months since its introduction, and still the end is not in sight. Arguments which were threshed out in the debate on the second reading of the resolutions, have been repeated and repeated and repeated in the discussion in committee of the whole. Not only so but the line of argument taken at one time by the opposition has been absolutely contradicted by the argument taken at another time. Anything to take up time and to make an appearance of objection to the provisions contained, whatever they may be. At one stage of the game Mr. Giesler, of Toronto, and other leading members of the opposition, declared that they would have supported the project if it had not been for its eastern connection with Quebec and the Maritime province ports. Monday and nearly all of Tuesday was taken up by argument in support of a demand that the Grand Trunk, as well as the Grand Trunk Pacific should be bound to carry traffic to the Maritime ports.

The question of duties on material imported for the construction of the railway came in for a large share of discussion a week ago and again occupied a great part of yesterday. Provision was made in the original bill that if the railway commissioners imported material for the construction of the eastern division, duties on such importations should not be charged up, and the company required to pay interest on the amount by way of rental. When the question was first brought up, the leader of the opposition pointed out that the provision relieving the company from payment of interest on such importations would have an important effect upon the rates for traffic over the road. He mentioned twelve million dollars as the probable amount of difference upon which the company would have to pay interest if duties had to be paid on such importations of material, and that, therefore, the rates would have to be proportionately higher on this account. Yesterday was chiefly taken up by an argument in support of a demand by the opposition that no material for the construction or betterment of the road should be imported free of duty. This demand was made ostensibly in the interest of the manufacturers; but when the ultimate result is considered, it may very well be believed that it was rather in the interest of the C. P. R. The danger to the C. P. R. from the present scheme is that, only paying a minimum rate of interest on actual cost it can afford to haul at much lower rates than the C. P. R., which is capitalized far above actual cost, and pays at least one per cent more interest. Anything that can be done to increase the cost of the Grand Trunk Pacific must, therefore, increase the rates to be charged over it, and must relieve the C. P. R. from a corresponding measure of reduction in competing rates. That this was the real purpose behind the contention of the opposition, may very well be supposed, when it is remembered that the manufacturers of eastern Canada, more than any other of the residents of Canada, require the lowest possible rates over the new railway in order to increase their business and render it more profitable.

For several days during the main debate the contention of the opposition was that the new railway north of the lakes was useless, because it could not carry grain in competition with the water route. A great part of yesterday was taken up with the contention that unless the Grand Trunk itself were bound by an agreement to carry its freight over the northern line, it would carry it through the States by way of the St. Lawrence. The members who put up the argument evidently forgot their arguments of a few days before; for if the Grand Trunk could not afford to carry freight by its north shore line, the use of which it gets at the lowest possible cost, it could much less afford to carry it over a much longer route through the United States, which line through the United States, which it would have to acquire at a maximum cost. But little of this kind of argument interferes with gentlemen who forget the responsibility of their position, and, having the fullest confidence in their ability to fool the people, are prepared to say anything in order to prolong discussion and thereby delay active work on this great national enterprise.

That the chief purpose of the lengthy outburst of the debate is delay, was proven by the motion of Mr. Clancy, moved yesterday, that committee surveys and estimates of cost should be submitted to parliament before the project was agreed to. This would mean at least a year and possibly two years' delay; in which time a change in the condition of the money markets might occur, which would render the financing of the scheme either altogether impossible, or compel such terms as would make it undesirable to enter upon it, and thereby throw the whole affair over altogether for an indefinite period. It is difficult to believe that a body of responsible representatives of a progressive country such as Canada, and having such great and pressing requirements, could be found to take such a position. The members speaking in support of delay were: Messrs. Clancy, Borden, Blair, Kemp, Johnston, of Cardwell, Sproule, Brock, Clark and Gourley.

THE WEATHER OFFICE SERVICE

In parliament on September 21st, Mr. Scott, M.P. for West Assiniboia, brought up an interview with R. F. Stuart, director of the Canadian meteorological service, in which he had exaggerated the extent and severity of the storm of September 13th. In support of Mr. Scott's argument Mr. Oliver said:

Mr. FRANK OLIVER (Alberta). Speaker. It seems remarkable that, when we have a meteorological service extending throughout the Dominion of Canada with important points of information throughout the territories, up to the present time there has been an absolute and utter misapprehension in the minds of the general public in Canada and in the old country as well, as to the extent and results of the storm. It seems to me desirable that the attention of the government should be drawn to that fact. Had the storm been treated in an ordinary way by the purveyors of news throughout the country it would not have been necessary to draw public attention to the facts. But when the opportunity has been taken, for what reason I am unable to say, to spread reports which are damaging and which are very largely incorrect, it is a time when we might expect that our meteorological service would be universal and destructive right before the country; would, in fact, have kept the matter right and not have allowed it to have gone wrong.

I wish to speak of the extent of the storm and it is on that point that I think the meteorological department was very greatly in fault in not having given information as to the limits to which the storm extended. My information is that on the Saturday of the storm, the 18th instant, at Edmonton, there was no storm whatever. There was no local knowledge of any storm at that time. The papers report a golf tournament taking place on that day, a very successful one in fact, so that it is evident there could have been no serious break in the weather on that particular day. It seems surprising that circulars should have been a report generally circulated throughout Canada and extended to the old country, that this storm was universal and destructive throughout the Territories. It has been surprising to me in view of the statements which have appeared in the eastern press that the even in the eastern press that the facts should not have been better known. I do not know where our eastern papers got their news service from the Territories, but it seems, certainly, as if they have been very short of information, when they have allowed for over a week such misapprehensions, such misstatements, and such damaging misstatements, to be circulated generally throughout the world, and to go, so far as I have seen, uncontradicted. It is not desirable to bring such matters up in parliament, but under all the circumstances it seems to be the only remedy for a very remarkable condition of affairs.

HORSE HILLS

C. W. Mathers, of Edmonton, was out on Monday and took photographs of our fine, new brick school.

Rev. C. S. Laidman, of Winnipeg, paid us a flying visit on Friday.

Mrs. Abe Lehman is enjoying a visit from her mother and sister, Mrs. and Miss Gibbs of Minneapolis.

The school trustees have been very fortunate in securing the services of Miss Durrand, of Strathcona, as substitute for a few weeks.

A. M. Jarvis, of London, Ont., is spending a few days with J. H. Hobbs, a former collegiate classmate.

Another Horse Hills broncho has broken his neck on account of undue indulgence in vicious antics while corralled and lassoed.

One of the largest congregations that has ever assembled in the school house greeted Rev. A. Hood last Sunday morning. The occasion being his farewell sermon before leaving for Rosebank, Manitoba.

On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs.

J. J. Bell entertained over twenty of the young people of this vicinity at their residence on Hill Grove stock farm. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and was brought to a close by all doing justice to a sumptuous midnight repast.

A grievance by no means uncommon to farmers along the Trail, is the manner in which traction engine mudholes and for fuel. On Saturday the men in charge of the new machine for Wilson Bros., Star, even had the "gall" to load up their fuel wagon from the tempting wood pile at the school. This is downright larceny, and the offenders leave themselves liable to serious punishment. The feeling against these cheeky trespassers is quite strong, and an example will certainly be made of them if this practice continues.

The weather seems settled again, and the different farms are scenes of great activity. Taking the garden produce is quite general now. There is a great vegetable crop this year. The Borgward potato patch will yield between five and six hundred bushels to the acre. The potatoes are very large, many weighing as much as three pounds. Some of the farmers are still cutting, while others have begun stacking. Although the grain has not turned out as well as was expected, the farmers think themselves very fortunate when they compare the harvest here with other places, as heavy continued rains, snowstorms and grain sprouting in the stocks are certainly things that have not been experienced around here.

September 30th.

ST. ALBERT WEDDING

On Tuesday, Sept. 22nd, the St. Albert cathedral was the scene of a very pretty event. Mr. D. J. McMillan, son of the late Hugh McMillan, and Miss Mary Grant, both formerly of Glenagarry, Ont., were united in matrimonial bonds by the Rev. Father Morer, parish priest of St. Albert.

The bride was charmingly attired in a handsome ivory suit, richly appliqued, while the bridegroom, Miss Maggie Kennedy, looked exquisite in satin, trimmed with lace.

The groom was aided by Mr. D. McDonald. After the ceremony was performed the guests repaired to the residence of Mr. J. McDonald, of St. Albert, brother-in-law of the bride, where breakfast was served that was quite equal to the occasion.

The large number of choice and costly presents which were presented to the bride and groom, showed how highly they were esteemed by their numerous friends.

Mr. Doodin and family have moved to Edmonton, where they will reside in future.

W. McKee, who has purchased E. L. Simpson's dairy barn, arrived from North Bay with his family on Tuesday.

The Presbyterian church is being painted this week. The Methodist church is having new pews put in and is receiving an oil finish inside.

A very pretty wedding took place at Josephsburg church on Thursday afternoon, when Miss Millie Gauß, the youngest daughter of Valentine Gauß, was united in marriage to Mr. M. A. Brackenside, teacher of Pleasant View school. Rev. C. W. Grasser performed the ceremony. The party then repaired to Mr. Gauß's home, where a wedding dinner was served, after which the guests enjoyed an old country dance. A large number of citizens from the Fort went out and the bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Brackenside will reside at Pleasant View, and your correspondent joins with their many friends in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous life together.

THE STATION GROUNDS

Building Operations in North West Section of the City.

There has been quite a transformation in the northwest section of the town, the site of the Canadian Northern railway station and yards. Here a tract of land a mile long and five hundred feet wide has been brushed and drained. A large ditch has been dug along the north side of the yards and side drains dug to this main ditch. In this way the grounds have been drained of all surface water. The wet season and the nature of the ground have retarded grading operations very considerably, but in spite of this rapid progress has been made. Excavations have been made on the site of the large station which the Canadian Northern railway will build next spring. From a junction a few hundred yards east of the station site, two grades are being made. The main line runs west from this point and the grading has been finished on this line far west as Ninth street. At present the men are engaged in constructing the elevator siding on the north side of the yards. This siding is now completed as far west as Eleventh street and several gangs of men are working at different points on the siding further west. The siding is being constructed out to the probable site of the machine shops in the northwest section of the railway property. The land is very difficult to work. The ground is boggy and full of roots.

Probably in no part of Edmonton are there such extensive building operations in progress as in this northwest section. Dozens of residences are in different stages of construction, dozens have just been completed. In a score of other places excavations have been made and operations are at a standstill owing to lack of building material. Numerous sidewalks have recently been built in this section of the city and the streets are being graded. What once was a large slough has been drained and a score of houses are in different stages of construction on it.
